

Saturday *re*Views

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28, 2000

Art

Michael Harrington

This is the last weekend for Diane Burko's intense landscapes of erupting volcanoes at the Philadelphia Art Alliance. Burko shows the beauty of the volcano rather than its power, using thick slabs of paint to make molten lava more soothing than scary. Cool off downstairs in the saffron aura of Kevin Kautenburger's "pollenized light" installation, and check out the handcrafted walnut-and-copper ant farm and red-cedar cricket box. Both exhibits close on Wednesday. The alliance is at 251 S. 18th St. Information: 215-545-4302.